With whatever I do, I strive to always bring positive energy to the table. As a result of this I am easy to work and get along with. Having just finished an Economics Degree at University of Victoria a few months ago it has been a challenging transition into world of programming. With that said, I have found the challenge exciting and the growth opportunity unlimited. This program reinforced my belief that my best asset is my problem solving skills, and that has been extremely helpful when learning to code. Whenever a new task emerges I am very good at structuring the problem, planning a variety of ways to complete it, executing and adjusting accordingly. My hobbies include filming, video editing and nearly any sport. Upon completing Lighthouse I am looking for a project that will allow me to continue to learn new technologies and utilize those that I already know.
